When Dr. Pamela MacPherson was a teenager, her family dentist helped her feel good about her smile. Now, as one of San Diego's leading dentists and a board-certified prosthodontist, she is helping her patients achieve the same kind of pride.

Dr. MacPherson's unique training allows her to devote special attention to the entire mouth. Her experience and education are especially helpful for patients who need full-mouth reconstruction or other extensive restorative work.

"I'm the quarterback when it comes to a complicated case that involves implants, dental surgery or orthodontics," she says. "I'm the one you see first, and the one who directs the other specialists."

Dr. MacPherson doesn't work only with patients who have extensive dental needs; she also provides general and cosmetic dentistry and treats patients with jaw conditions like TMJ.

"We're here to meet your needs whether you're looking for a regular dentist or a prosthodontist," she says. "We're devoted to your smile."
